

FOR THE NIGHT AFTER A BAD DAY

A bad day is weather.

Not a verdict on you, the goal or the plan.

THE USUAL ADVICE

Be harder on yourself.
Hold the line.

It sounds like discipline. It works like a tax on tomorrow.

WHAT ACTUALLY HELPS

Kindness keeps the standard and drops the insult.

People who meet a failure with self-compassion try again sooner. The self-criticism was the part costing them effort.

TONIGHT, TRY THIS

Write the note you'd send a friend who had your exact day.

Three lines. Two minutes.

YOUR THREE LINES

The note

- 1 What happened, plainly.
 - 2 That it happens to everyone who is actually trying.
 - 3 One small thing for tomorrow.

SAVE THIS FOR THE NEXT BAD DAY

Kind tonight. Same standard tomorrow.

What would your note say? Tell me in the comments.
